Pacific Northwest Lavandin Selection Guide - Lavandula x intermedia (French) Lavandin

Lavandins are a hybrid cross between Lavandula angustifolia and Lavandula latifolia.

They are large plants that produce long flower spikes, on long, straight strong stems.

Many of these cultivars produce a high yield of very fragrant essential oil.

They should be planted 4-5 feet apart. The tallest cultivars can be grown as a tall border or hedge.

Lavandins usually start blooming in mid July in the Pacific NW.

Bloom time will vary slightly depending on the climate and your location and elevation.
